Once an application is complete (all of the relevant items in the list above have been received), your application will be ready for review by the Registrar who may require you to provide additional information before the application is ready for a decision. Then, if satisfied that the requirements have been met, the Registrant may grant approval; or the Registrar may determine that your application must be referred to the Registration Committee for a registration decision.

Once registration has been approved, you will be issued an invoice for the annual registration fee (prorated to your date of registration). Your registration will not be completed until the CVBC receives payment of the annual registration fee.

Only after you have received official confirmation that your registration has been completed (registration letter sent by email) may you engage in the practice of veterinary medicine in BC.
